Home to the world’s largest prison population, the United States cages more humans than any other nation on earth. Our hometown, Los Angeles, California, imprisons more people than any other city in the world. This course will examine the rise of mass imprisonment in Los Angeles, the national and global epicenter of human confinement. Race and deportation will be central themes in the course.

FALL 2014
Tuesdays/Thursdays, 9:30am – 10:45am
Humanities 135

History 196, Afro Am 188A, Chicana/o Studies 191

Professor Kelly Lytle Hernandez
UCLA Department of History